Improv Theater Scenework

Scenework is the key to improv and there are many moving parts. Have fun while learning specific components of good scenework. Build your knowledge and skills base so you can support more artistic choices. Learn how to hop on the joyride of 'living in the moment.' You will tune into what is present in you and your partner and focus on that relationship. Watch the 'comedic you' emerge without jokes or gags. No need to 'script' a scene or constantly invent new ideas. Listening and focus are your friends. Background: While all level of skills are welcome, you should have completed a beginning improvisation class in either long or short form improvisation or have a theater background. Returning students will be able to expand their scenework skills as this class is customized to those enrolled.

Improv Theater Basics Theater

Want to have fun with others while expanding your creativity and sense of joy? Improv is the popular theater art form where you 'play' with others, creating spontaneous scenes using the 'Yes...and' approach. Here you will learn improv fundamentals using games and exercises. Experience the accepting environment of 'Yes...and.' Be prepared for self-discovery. Live more in the current moment. Listen and respond more spontaneously. Boost your social confidence. This class is for newbies as well as those improvisers who want to strengthen their improv muscles. Each Basics course is unique.

Expressive Portrait Painting for Teens

Portraits can do more than just show an image of a person, they can show their soul and energy. During this workshop, teen artists will complete an expressionist portrait of a person of their choosing. Using a reference photo(s), that students should bring, they will learn to paint a portrait that is representative of their subject physically and emotionally. Students will learn technical skills including proportions of the face, color mixing, and composition, as well as soft skills such as using color intuitively and painting expressively with emotion. All levels of painting abilities are welcome to attend. This will be a great portfolio builder!
